AWARDS

May 2020. Margaret Cunningham Women's Center Mentoring Award, which is "annually presented to an individual of the Vanderbilt community who has helped to support women on campus through professional and intellectual development." "According to her nominator, Professor Fryd "has fostered the intellectual and professional development of Vanderbilt women for the thirty-five years she has been on the faculty." Another nominator explains that her "tireless efforts on behalf of the History of Art majors' association... is a model for faculty mentoring of students." In addition to enriching the experiences of students, Professor Fryd has supported junior women faculty, scheduling regular check-in meetings and offering to read drafts of works-in-progress. One nominator stated that her own book "sailed through the peer review process, in part because of the close eye Vivien took in her reading of it. Vivien does this labor out of a desire to see me succeed and to help the field of American art history advance."
