Graduate Student Seminars

Everything You Always Wanted to Know About Academic Book Publishing (But Were Afraid to Ask)

Featuring
Beth Kressel Itkin
Acquisitions Editor, Vanderbilt University Press

Betsy Phillips
Sales and Marketing Manager, Vanderbilt University Press

Joell Smith-Borne
Managing Editor, Vanderbilt University Press

In many fields, academic books are still the primary vehicle for sharing scholarly research as well as the premier marker of academic achievement. And yet, graduate students and junior scholars are often not well-informed about the process of writing and publishing an academic book. Please join us as three representatives of Vanderbilt University Press demystify this process, taking you behind the scenes of the world of academic book publishing and offering helpful advice for turning your work into a book project. This event is open to all Vanderbilt University graduate students as well as interested faculty. Refreshments will be served.

Thursday, April 6 | 3:00-4:30 PM
Furman Hall 209

Sponsored by the College of Arts and Science and VU Press