The relationship graduate students have to their mentors is one of the most important factors in shaping their future careers. It is often difficult, however, for graduate students to know what they can do to foster a strong relationship with their mentors as well as what they have the right to expect from their mentors. In this seminar, Senior Associate Dean Keivan Stassun will discuss what mentoring is (and what it is not), what you can expect from your mentors, why it is important to have a network of mentors, and how you can harness the relationship with your mentors to develop a strong professional identity. Refreshments will be served.

Monday, December 5 | 2:30-3:30 PM

Stevenson Center 5-211

Sponsored by the College of Arts and Science